

DAILY SENTINEL
WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 20.
FROM WASHINGTON.
THE GREAT RUPTURE.

The President Free from the Trammels of the Republican Party.

SECRET HISTORY OF MISSISSIPPI CASE

HOW SEWARD AND STANTON TRIED TO PLAY THEIR LITTLE GAME AND FAILED.

Southern People in Washington, and What they think of the President's Action—The Radical Declaration of War Against the President—The First Gun Fired by Thaddeus Stevens, of Pennsylvania, at the Chicago Times.

Washington, Sept. 13.
The confidence which the Times has all along reposed in the wisdom and patriotism of Andrew Johnson is now fully justified. There is no longer any doubt of his deliberate recognition of the fact that the Republican party has cut loose from him. He has, at last, shaken off the trammels with which the wily and unscrupulous leaders of the Republican party sought to hamper and control him; and he is now acting independently of them. He has, at last, taken the step which he has taken during the last few days.

He has virtually abrogated the Confiscation Act by directing the Attorney General to issue to the United States District Attorneys throughout the South instructions by which confiscation can only follow a regular conviction for treason in a United States court, and by which all property "confiscated" without this to be restored to its proper owner.

He has, by fully sustaining Governor Sharkey, of Mississippi, initiated his policy of reconstruction determined on and announced by him in the Cabinet some time ago, and thus plainly proclaimed his purpose to acknowledge and recognize the Southern States as States at once, and to admit them to all the rights and privileges of the next session of Congress; and this in defiance of Thaddeus Stevens and the Secretary of War, and the whole tribe of radical Republicans.

He has declared frankly that he does not intend to manage the Reconstruction of the Southern States in the South, nor to permit the Republican leaders or the Republican party to do so; that he will not compel any church or ecclesiastical body at the South to do any act or conform to any observance repugnant to their feelings or their creed; and that he will not permit the pulpits of the Southern churches to be filled by adventurers and fanatics from the North, in opposition to the wishes of the congregations who worship in them.

He has intimated to Chief Justice Chase that no attempt must be made to force negro equality or negro suffrage upon the people of the South, against their wishes, and that the people of each one of the Southern States must be allowed to decide for itself whether or not it desires to have negro suffrage.

He has absolutely refused to see Horace Greeley, a volume in itself.

He has caused Gen. Howard to establish a patrol for the prevention of negro insurrection in the South, and has informed that officer that, as the head of the Freedmen's Bureau, and having so large a military force at his command, he will be held responsible if any such insurrection takes place.

There is a curious secret history of the President's action in the Mississippi case, which shows that we are on the eve of great events, involving at least, probably, an entire reconstruction of the Cabinet. For many weeks past the radical Republican leaders have been endeavoring to poison the mind of the President, by representing to him that the Southern people were not to be trusted, that they were unscrupulous, and that it was absolutely necessary to keep up a large military establishment in each one of the Southern States. But by sustaining the action of Governor Sharkey, and disbanding a large portion of the troops under General Slocum's orders, the President has declared that Mississippi is a State in the Union, with all the rights and privileges of Illinois or New York; that she may raise, organize, arm, equip and drill her own State militia, elect her own Governor and Legislature, and send her own Senators and Representatives to Congress as soon as she pleases.

The action of the President in this Mississippi case, is worthy of attentive consideration, as it is the most important step which Mr. Johnson has taken since his inauguration, and which has pointed the radical politicians more bitterly than any other. The proclamation of the President permitting the life imprisonment of arms and ammunition into the Southern States, was issued August 20, without the sanction of the whole Cabinet. The President's intention to issue this proclamation was communicated to the Cabinet two weeks previously. Two members of the Cabinet then opposed it, as unconstitutional, and it was finally promulgated by the President with the full knowledge that it was disapproved of by two members of the Cabinet. The President, however, was fully satisfied of the propriety and wisdom of the measure. Gov. Sharkey's proclamation directing the organization of the State militia of Mississippi had been issued ten days before, namely, August 19. The war of Gen. Slocum, forbidding the organization of the State militia, was issued on the 24th of August, but the President had not been officially informed of the order on September 2. About the 25th of August, the habeas corpus case took place, Gen. Slocum refusing to pay any regard to the process of the State Courts. An appeal being made in Washington in this case, the Secretary of State, Mr. Olney, and Mr. Olney responded, and conveyed to Gov. Sharkey the pleasant intelligence that Mississippi was yet under martial law, and that the civil authority there was in subjection to the military authority, and that the military authority was the supreme power in the State.

At the same time that malignant meddler, Mr. Carl Schurz, telegraphed to the President, begging that Gen. Slocum should be removed from the office of Governor of Mississippi, and be removed by Mr. Johnson. This was a little too much for the President's good nature. He received this impudent dispatch from Schurz on the 25th of August. He immediately issued his proclamation permitting the free and unobstructed importation of arms and ammunition into the Southern States; and then, on the 30th of August, he telegraphed to Schurz, rebuking him for his interference, and directing the organization of the State militia of Mississippi, in the manner proposed by Gov. Sharkey. In this dispatch he told Schurz very plainly to mind his own business, and said "Gen. Slocum will issue no order interfering with Gov. Sharkey's efforts."

Leader that there might be to excite on the ground of misunderstanding, the President, on the 21st of September, directed the Secretary of War to order Gen. Slocum to revoke his order of August 25th, and not to interfere with the free travel between this city and Richmond, and to send two trains a day now arrive here from that city, while two trains daily now leave here for Richmond. Every one who comes of course has some business to transact, and as soon as this is done he takes his departure, as living here is very expensive. All of them with whom I have conversed, expressed themselves delighted with the President's action in the Mississippi case, because they think that he will pursue a similar course with every one of the Southern States. The sixty gentlemen from one of the States, who called to see him on Monday, and to whom he made a speech, are never tired of recurring to the pleasant nature of that interview, and will carry with them to their homes, and convey to their neighbors, a most favorable impression in regard to the wisdom and magnanimity of the policy of the Administration, as developed in the recent action of President Johnson.

Indeed, the good effects of that little speech will be seen in the fact that those to whom it was delivered. Each one of the sixty gentlemen, living in a different locality, will repeat it to his own circle of neighbors and friends, and will distribute copies of it to them, for which purpose they have bought large numbers of the newspapers containing it; making his own running comments on it, and telling how earnestly the President spoke when he uttered this that sentiment, and with what emphasis he made this and that declaration, &c.

Indeed, judging from what I have seen and heard of the Southern people who have come to Washington during the last two months, I am satisfied that their influence on their fellow citizens, on their return home, will be vastly beneficial. Their visit here will certainly be attended with good results. The President continues to grant pardons as fast as each case can be properly examined.

The Northern States, too, contribute their full quota to the crowds that throng the streets of the capital. There are a great many leading Republican politicians here, and more are expected in a few days. A full and free interchange of opinion and views is taking place between them, and it is found that their views are as wide apart as the poles. Most of those that are here now are bitterly opposed to the policy of President Johnson, as it has been recently developed, and do not hesitate to declare their intention to oppose it in Congress with all the means in their power. The platform upon which they stand is embodied in the recent Lancaster speech of Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, of Pennsylvania, and that will be the issue in the next Congress. It is to be seen that your readers are aware, the great leaders of the Republican party in the House of Representatives declare open war upon the President and his policy, and declares that the Southern States must be treated as conquered provinces, kept out of Congress, and their estates confiscated and sold to pay the national debt. Thaddeus Stevens, however, strongly defends the President's policy, and declares that if the radical platform of Stevens, Senator Wilson, and Gen. Butler is adhered to, it will result in the total disruption of the Republican party. That is true, or, rather, the Republican party is already hopelessly divided. A very able writer from this city to the Philadelphia News (Republican) says:

"The production of this letter (Mr. Harlan's) of the seeming division of the Republican party, to which he has already adverted, and which he also deprecated. Taking the party newspapers as our basis, we find them utterly discordant. In Chicago the Union party seems hopelessly divided. The same is true of Milwaukee, St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, New York, Boston and Albany. Of the condition of things in Philadelphia your readers can judge for themselves, but I fear that you are by no means united on your city which is now in the field. In each and every one of these great cities the Republican papers are at 'loggerheads,' no concert of action and no sympathy of feeling existing between them. East dividing up into 'radicals' and 'conservatives,' 'universal suffrage' and 'conditional suffrage,' it is no wonder that the dead carcass of Democracy is being galled and razed to pieces by the party physicians, Vallandigham and Weed, and it is not surprising if the latter takes advantage of our family squabbles and rise into favor while we are quarreling, with all our might and main, over non-essentials."

"If the party would only arouse itself to the emergency of the hour, and 'shove!' each man in his boots, in Missouri and Maryland, 'Forney' and Bennett, of New York, and Weed, of Albany, then there would be considerable hope for our country."

THE Company holds by lease, and in fee, about twenty thousand acres of the most excellent coal lands in Western Indiana, bordering both sides of the Wabash river. Maps of these lands may be seen at the office of the Company, in Covington, Ind., at the office of Wm. D. King, 25 Park Place, N. Y. City, at the office of Hon. J. R. Coffman, Huntington, Indiana, and at the office of Joseph Hinton, Covington, Indiana.

A reference to the report of the Hon. David Owen, Late State Geologist, will show that these lands are situated in the midst of the finest coal fields of the State, abounding also in salt, iron and other valuable mineral substances.

Near the mouth of Coal Creek, where the Company has large quantities of lands salt water has been discovered in the quality to the surface. This water was procured some 35 years ago by boring, some after the Oldenburgh salt finding its way down the Wabash and Erie canal, Mr. Thomas, an expert, finding himself unable to compete with it, abandoned the manufacture. In boring for salt water, the Company recently discovered a large quantity of coal.

Those lands all lie in close proximity to the Wabash and Erie canal, some within a few miles of the same. Mr. John McManamy, the business agent of the Company, has returned from a tour of observation of the oil fields of Pennsylvania, convinced that the lands leased by the Company, in Fountain and Parke counties, have as much promise for the production of oil as the oil fields of Pennsylvania, and that the lands are situated in close proximity to the Wabash and Erie canal, and that the lands are situated in close proximity to the Wabash and Erie canal.
